

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An end point detector for detecting the monitor light to control the operation of an etching process by the etching equipment based on changes in 5 the monitor light supplied from plasma etching equipment. The end point detector comprises a sensor body for detecting the monitor light and a collector barrel for guiding the monitor light from the etching equipment to the sensor body, wherein the collector barrel is detachable from the sensor body.